

Benjamin HOFER

May 2013

39 points

“The future belongs to those who remain loyal to their ambitions”

There are undoubtedly only a few excuses that could justify a low IB score - almost everyone is capable of achieving a high score. In the end, relentless effort and perseverance pay off, allowing even the untalented to succeed. The IB is a short part of your life, but one of enormous significance in shaping your future.

It all boils down to the realization that in most cases, a good IB is absolutely essential if you desire to achieve your life goals - the higher the desire to turn the goal into a reality, the higher the input and eventual grade. However, simply telling yourself that you are already doing your best will not suffice - try to push yourself to excel daily. Sometimes, it takes more than your best to reach the desired score because ‘your best’ is a limit you place on yourself – one that only you can break through.

As long as you remain whole-heartedly dedicated throughout the two years, you will attain that remarkable IB score that will take you one step closer in the pursuit of realizing your dreams.